CAERMARTHENSHIRE

"PEOPLE CALLED QUAKERS."

[By Geo. Eyre Evans, a member from its foundation, of the

FRIENDS' HISTORICAL SOCIETY.]

Chapter I.

The earliest mention of Friends in this County is probably that of the year 1661, when we are told that—

"Besides the grievous persecution inflicted on this People in Wales, under Colour of Law, many of them were grievously beaten and abused, to the Hazard of their Lives by wicked Persons on the Road, who on Presumption of Impunity, made it their sport to insult and abuse their peaceable Neighbours. Of those who suffered much by this Means were John Humphreys, and Humphry William at Carmarthen, . . . and even some of the Priests struck several of them with their own Bands." (Cf. "Sufferings," Joseph Beise, 1753, i., 73-732).

This was eleven years after the time of their being first distinguished by the name of Quakers in the year 1650. John ap John, of Trevor, in the parish of Llangelor (one of the many persons influenced by the preaching of the earliest associates of George Fox, and who at once engaged actively as Ministers in the "service of Truth") had, in 1655, suffered imprisonment. "Being in the Steeple-house there, after the Preacher had ended his sermon, John ap John asked him whether he was a Minister of Christ? This question gave great offence, not only to the Priest of whom it was asked, but also to another of the same Function then present; who discovered his wrath by instantly seizing John by the collar, and without suffering him to speak another word, dragging him out and delivering him to a constable who confined him that night in a close dark prison. Next day he was brought before the Magistrates, whom the priests laboured to incense against him, requiring in their fierce zeal 'to have him whipt, that the Devil might come out of him,' and as often as he attempted to speak, one or other of the priests would strike him, and stop his mouth with their hands." At length he was sent to prison at Cardiff.

The practice of speaking in churches and in public places after the authorised preacher had concluded was an admitted custom, if not allowed by the law, during the period from 1643 to 1660.

On the 8th September, 1662, one James Pictou was committed to Carmarthen Castle, under sentence of prebunire, for refusing to swear, and was, from thence, after four months, removed to the gaol at Haverfordwest. He must have been, at some date during that period, sent back to Caermarthen, for in 1672, amongst the prisoners discharged by Charles II., his Letters Patent, we read: "Out of Caermarthen Castle, James Pictou who had lain in close confinement there ten years under sentence of premunire." James Owen 1634-1700 the well known Presbyterian minister, who was born in the parish of Abernart, was one of his pupils "in Caermarthen Castle, from whence he was sent to the Free-school of that town—a seminary of considerable note—then under the care of Mr. David Phillips." (Cf. Cambro-British Biography ; Wm. Richards, LL.D., 1820, p. 316.)

Humphrey William, already mentioned, was a sturdy Quaker of Caermarthen; he and his wife Rebecca as they were going to a meeting at Haverfordwest in September, 1662, were taken in the streets, and imprisoned some days. In 1684 he was a prisoner in Caermarthen Gaol about a year, "for absence from the National Worship," and one Thomas Griffiths was his fellow prisoner, for about three months, for the same cause.

At this time we get scattered references to Quakers in the county and closely adjacent to it. There is, for example, the curious account, given on the 23rd March, 1667, by John Man, collector of the port of Swansea, to Joseph Williamson, secretary to Lord Arlington. "A Tenby vessel from Bristol was bulged within the bar, and in great danger. The captain unto a Quaker woman in the cabin, who was afraid, lay her head on two great bales. She asked what they were, and being told they were Church Bibles, said it was no wonder such a violent storm fell upon them, and it would not cease till those Jonahs were cast overboard; but coming on shore in a boat with others, she alone was drowned, and perished the Jonah." (Cf. S.P.D., 1667.)

An early Friends' Register preserved in Somerset House, contains this entry: "Rachel Bowen, departed this life the 11th Day of the 1th mo. in the fear of our blessed Saviour, 1684. And was stelen from Friends, And lies inter'd in Llanille Steeple-House."

Archdeacon Tenison, in the valuable MS. account of his Visitation in Caermarthenshire, 1710, which is amongst the archives in the Diocesan Registry, makes occasional references to the Quakers, e.g.,

"Llanllan [Laugharne]. In this parish are two meetings, one of Quakers, and another of Presbyterians. They are both of long standing. The Quakers have continued ever since the reign of King Charles II.; and the Presbyterians were here in King James's reign. The Quakers are two families."

"Llan Deilo Tawr. There is a meeting of Quakers, consisting of about 5 families of this parish."

"Llanllwch. Query if there is not a Quakers' Meeting at this place?"

From the end of the seventeenth century onwards the proceedings of the Society of Friends in South Wales have been recorded in a series of MS. Minute Books, which are fortunately well-nigh intact and available for historical purposes. They are kept in the safe of the Neath Meeting-house, in the custody of the Clerk of the Monthly Meeting F. Wm. Gibbins, the present High Sheriff of Glamorganshire. By the polite offices of our fellow-member, and with the consent of the Monthly Meeting, I have had access to this unique mine of original information, and have made a fairly complete examination of the twenty-one volumes submitted to me. From their pages I have extracted such pertaining to Friends in the County of Caermarthen, which will be incorporated in these chapters, and appear in print for the first time. F. Wm. Gibbins (son of Frederick J. Gibbins, and grandson of Livingston Gibbins, both of the Society of Friends) gave personal attention to the matter, was present during the whole of the inspection, and has revised and had type written every extract made, which as read out was taken down by his shorthand clerk, Mr. Davies, and afterwards carefully compared with the original entry. A list of the MSS. and their dates will be given at the end of these chapters.

The letters M.M. are used for "Monthly Meeting"; Q.M. for "Quarterly Meeting"; and Y.M. for "Yearly Meeting."

CAERMARTHEN.

The earliest reference to Friends in this town would appear to be that at a M.M. held at Redstone, the 19th of 2nd mo., 1700, when we read of "This Meeting receiving a note from Friends of Caermarthen desiring us to assist them, as they are in arrears of rent for their Meeting House at Llanllwch. It is ordered that F. Muesgrave pay Richard Stafford 10s., and let him know that it is desired of this Meeting he should see the 7s. rent he paid." Redstone is in Pembrokeshire.

A Friends' Meeting House was there. The late Frederick J. Gibbins, writing in 1903, says: "This place is a few miles from Narberth. Probably the last meeting held there was in 1816, when Henry Knight, a member of Ratcliff M.M., married Sarah Lewis. Henry Knight died at his residence, near Swansea, in 1863, and not long before his death he told me that at the time of his marriage, one half of the roof of Redstone Meeting-house was remaining. In 1820 the whole place had fallen into ruins. I could see no trace of the Meeting-house, but was shown some stones in a wall that had formed part of the building. Trewern is a small Burial Ground near Redstone. It was the property of John Lewis, a Friend, whose residence was Trewern House. The last survivor of this family presented the graveyard, and an adjoining cottage, to the Society of Friends in 1876." (Cf. Journal of Friends' Historical Society, 1903, ii., p. 45).

Where the Friends met for worship at this period has been until now a matter of conjecture; this entry, taken in conjunction with that by Archdeacon Tenison already quoted points to the secluded suburb of Llanllwch, Caermarthen, as that affording the needed quiet and unobtrusive place for their worship. It was in all likelihood a room or outbuilding rented from some sympathetic farmer.

The first Meeting-house for Friends actually erected in the town of Caermarthen was that built in 1746-8 on a site "situate, lying and being in Gell Street, otherwise Geer Street, otherwise Lamas Street." On the 30th and 31st of the 10th mo. 1746, "a house and garden" were bought by Thomas Morgan, maltster, one of the Friends, from David Thomas, glower, and on 6th day, 6th mo., 1748, Thomas Morgan granted to Peter Young and others, trustees a "lease for one year of the New Meeting House, lately erected and built by money arising out of a subscription among several of the people called Quakers."

The first recorded M.M. held in it was that on the 3rd of 6th mo., 1756, the Friends present being John Allen, Lewis William, Jacob David, Thomas John, Philip Rees, William Evan William, and Thomas Price. No collection. Our next M.M. is to be held at the usual time.

This building of 1746-8, remained practically as erected until shortly after the passing in it of Morgan C. Evans, in March, 1902, who owned it, and lived in it. The walls had been pierced to receive a few windows, and a tiled roof had taken the place of the original thatch.

On 2nd, 10th mo., 1807, Henry Squire, of Swansea, ship-builder, being then the only surviving trustee of the Meeting-house, granted a lease of it to seven members of the Society of Friends, to carry on Divine worship in it as in the past. It was at once put in order, the sum of £30 12s. being paid for repairing Caermarthen Meeting House, at M.M. held on the 13th of 4th mo., 1809. Also at the M.M. held at Swansea, the 16th of 12th mo., 1813, "William Jones brought to this M. an account of Expenses incurred in repairing the Meeting-house at Caermarthen, amounting to £2 4s. 6d., which the Treasurer was desired to discharge."

Chapter II.

Shortly afterwards we hear of an application by the Wesleyan Methodists for the loan of the modest Meeting-house, which is thus recorded: "At our M.M. held at Swansea, the 20th, of 7th mo., 1820, an application having been made to this M. for the loan of our Meeting-house at Caermarthen, for the purpose of holding meetings of the Wesleyan Methodists, during repairs of their own, it is the judgment of this M., consistent with the direction of the Y.M., that it cannot be lent them for that purpose. A. Jackson and Joseph T. Price are requested to inform Joseph Cole of the decision of this M. We appoint Abraham Jackson and Joseph T. Price to endeavour to let the Meeting-house at Caermarthen, in a manner agreeable with our title thereof."

It was about this time that the Friends ceased regular worship at Caermarthen; their numbers, never very large of any period, were now reduced to but a few. A tenant for the Meeting-house was soon found, and the difficulties in the way of letting it to the Methodists must have been surmounted, as they entered into occupation of it and there remained until the year 1821, when at a M.M. held at North, the 14th of 3rd mo., "A letter having been received from C. Jones, on behalf of the Methodist Society occupying our Meeting-house at Caermarthen, expressing a wish to give up the same, it was agreed that in the event of its being rented and left in the same state in which they took it from us, Joseph T. Price be authorised to take possession of it again." This was done, and the Meeting-house again let the same year, for "at our M.M. held at Swansea the 14th of 10th mo., 1824, Joseph T. Price reports that the Meeting-house at Caermarthen has been let to Marks, for the purpose of holding a school, at a rent of £6 per annum from 1st mo., 25th, such possession to be given up when required. And he also reports that he received £5, less 12s. 6d. for repairs, balance due from former tenants, which is now paid to the Treasurer." These Wesleyan Methodists who were the first tenants of the Friends' Meeting-house, were those who formed the Welsh congregation, which erected Ebenezer Chapel, in the year 1824.

Marks, the schoolmaster, appears to have occupied the Meeting-house until 1826, when at M.M. held at Swansea, the 9th of 3rd mo., we hear that "a letter has been received from Wm. Johns, of Caermarthen, wishing to rent the Meeting-house at Caermarthen for a school, which is referred to Joseph T. Price and Berington Gibbins."

Johns was tenant until 1828, when at M.M. held at North, the 10th of 7th mo., it was decided that "William Johns wishing to give up the Meeting-house at Caermarthen, the subject is referred to Joseph T. Price and Berington Gibbins."

Evidently feeling that there was little likelihood of again using the Meeting-house for Friends' worship, the Society decided to part with it. At M.M. held at Swansea, the 7th of 4th mo., 1831, "Berington Gibbins and Joseph T. Price were requested to apply to the Half-yearly Meeting for a minute authorising the sale of the Meeting-house at Caermarthen, agreeable to the deed of trust for the same."

Tenth Minute of Half-yearly Meeting, held at Hay, the 13th of 4th mo., 1831: "The South Division of Wales M.M. having applied for the authority of this Meeting in confirming the sale of the Meeting-house and Burial Ground at Caermarthen, the Clerk of this Meeting is directed to sign the following Minute on behalf of this Meeting: At a meeting of the Society of Friends, held at Hay, the 13th of 4th mo. (April), 1831, being the Half Yearly Meeting of said Society for the Principality of Wales. The Meeting for the South Division of Wales held at Swansea the 7th of 4th mo., 1831, consisting principally of Meetings which formerly constituted the M.M. of Caermarthen-shire and Glamorganshire, having agreed on the propriety of selling the Meeting-house and Burial Ground belonging to the Society of Friends in Caermarthen-shire held by them under Trustees, of whom Richard S. Harford, John Harford, Robert Eaton, Thomas Higg, and Jos. Price only survive, and as it appears by the deed of Trust, or Lease by which the same is held, that the authority of the Meeting concerned is requisite to complete the Title, this Meeting being one of those referred to the said Society, hereby authorises the sale of the said Meeting-house and Burial Ground at Caermarthen to [Edward] D[ominick] Evans, of Caermarthen for the sum of One hundred and fifteen pounds, on condition that the Burial Ground be not disturbed, and the Trustees, or survivor or survivors of them are authorised to execute the necessary deed for the sale of the same accordingly; signed Jomh. Rice."

A stone yet remains in the back wall of the tiny Burial Ground behind the transformed Meeting-house, inscribed—

IS THE PROPERTY

TALLEY ABBEY.

(Paper read by W. Spurrell, Esq., at the Abbey, May 28th, 1908, to the Members of the Antiquarian Society, who attended the Dolau Cothi Excursion).

The name Talley is derived from the Welsh name "Tal-y-llechau," which signifies the "Head of the Lakes." Whoever was responsible for the original selection of the site upon which this old pile of ruins now stands, it is quite clear that in those remote days there were some at least who had an eye for natural beauty, which led them to domicile the future occupants of this house in what is probably the most beautiful spot in the whole of the county.

There is every reason to believe that the Abbey was founded by Rhys ab Gruffydd, Prince of South Wales, grandson of Rhys ab Tewdwr, and Justiciar of South Wales under Henry II. He was also the founder of the Cistercian Abbey of Strata Florida. According to Mr. Edward Owen's deductions, the date of the foundation of this Abbey falls between 1193 and 1197. There was considerable doubt as to the religious body to which this Abbey belonged, and we have to thank Mr. Owen for establishing the fact that it was a Praemonstratensian house, occupied by a community of canons of the Pr. order, and it is interesting to note that it was the only house of that order in the whole of Wales.

It was dedicated to Our Lady and St. John the Baptist, and its first abbot was Gwase, who afterwards became Bishop of St. David's. Another abbot was secretary and confessor to Sir Rhys ab Thomas.

The coats of arms are those of the Butlers of Pembroke and Dunraven; Basset of Beaupre; Sir John Monnington, Kt.; The Beaufoots; The Lancastrian-Plantagenets 1405-1603; Sir William de Loudres; Butler of Coedgamillys; and Sir Wm. Fleming. The window also bears the crest of the Beaufoots, and emblems of the Passion.

The Parish Church Registers show that scores of sailors of many nationalities, and many unknown, have been buried in the Churchyard. The dreaded Coffin Sides, the scene of many a shipwreck, is situated in the parish. One of the most pathetic is recorded on a stone in the churchyard; this inscription tells its own sad tale, "Sacred to the memory of Lt. Col. Coquelme, aged 45 years, and Adeline, his daughter, aged 12 years; both natives of France, who lost their lives by the wreck of the ship 'La Jeune Emma' on Cofn Sidan Sand as they were returning home from Martinique in the West Indies, and were interred in this ground on the 25th of November, 1878. The above named lady was niece to Josephine, consort of that renowned individual Napoleon Bonaparte." Fourteen young women in deep mourning attended the remains of the lady as pall-bearers. The door of the ship's cabin of solid mahogany, is still preserved in a cottage in the village.

The Church is furnished throughout with heavy pews of yellow pine. The pews are now crumbling to pieces; the floor-boards are rotting away and exposing the bare earth, which is damp and clammy. The rain streams in through the roof in parts. The stones in tower and bell-cot are weather worn and crumbling away; the battlements of the tower are in danger of falling; the timber is rotting away; the bells—three in number—cannot be rung; one bell is cracked and requires re-casting. There is no system of ventilation or heating, and it is positively injurious to the health of the worshippers. It is the most dilapidated Church in the Diocese, and the only Parish Church, we believe, unrestored in the Archdeaconry of Carmarthen.

The present intention is to preserve all its ancient characteristics and historic features, and restore it with loving care to its pristine beauty. The work has been placed in the hands of W. D. Croce, Esq., F.R.I.B.A., the Architect to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who will be able to bring experience and culture to bear on its restoration.

Mr. Croce writes thus with regard to it:—"Your Church is a very typical example of the early Welsh work, executed out of the local stone at hand, whereby the builders showed their power and originality in dealing with rough and untractable material. It has, of course, suffered not a little at times, when the builders' masterly work was not properly appreciated, but that it is with its remarkable tower a historic monument of the highest order, and worthy of the most careful preservation seems to me to go without saying. We owe it to posterity to hand down that we have received from the great ages of architecture, and this can only be done by a careful process of preservation, such as you are contemplating."

To carry out the work worthily, and to hand it down to posterity as a national monument, the estimated cost is £3,500. The Committee earnestly appeal to all lovers of ancient buildings for subscriptions.

CAERMARTHENSHIRE "PEOPLE CALLED QUAKERS."

[By Geo. Eyre Evans, a member from its foundation of the

FRIENDS' HISTORICAL SOCIETY.]

CHAPTER VI.

LAUGHARNE: THE QUAKERS' YARD.

Early particulars of the Society of Friends at Laugharne are contained in an Indenture, now before me, and dated the 10th November, 1726. It was made on that day between Owen Edwardes, of Llannilo, and Mary Perrot, of Laugharne, widow of James Perrot, late of that town, and sister of Richard Stafford, late of the city of Bristol, deceased. For the sum of 10s. paid by Mary Perrot to Owen Edwardes, he sells to her and her executors, "all that piece of land commonly called the Fold, being part and parcel of the fields called the Tucking-mill Parks, and divided and severed from same by a hedge which encloses and encompasses said piece of land called the Fold; and also one footway to the same Fold, containing four foot in breadth, from the highway leading from Laugharne to St. Clears, in and through the north-east part of the fields called the Tucking-mill Parks by the north hedge thereof which divides the same fields from a field called [blank], now in the possession of Catherine Harry, of Laugharne, widow."

The Fold is to be held by Mary Perrot and her executors for her and their use, during the full end and term of one thousand years, in trust that it shall be lawful to, and for all or any of the people called Quakers and for their servants, agents and labourers, from time to time, in the day time with proper tools and implements, to have free ingress, egress and regress, in and by the footway described to the Fold.

"to lay graves or pits and to bury and inter therein all or any of the descendants and relations of Richard Stafford, deceased, or Mary Perrot, as also all or any of the people called Quakers who shall during the said term, die within the county of Carmarthen; and to use such funeral rites and solemnities in all or every such burials, as the people called Quakers, or any of them then and there present shall think proper and convenient to perform and celebrate."

Should Mary Perrot appropriate, or permit, or suffer to be appropriated the Fold to any other use than to be a Burying place for the descendants of Richard Stafford, or herself, or for the people called Quakers, then it shall be lawful for Owen Edwardes to re-enter, and by any writing under his hands to declare this indenture void. Mary Perrot and her executors are to keep the hedges in good repair.

The witnesses to the signatures are William Hibbs, Attorney at Bristol, and his clerk Matthew Parnell.

Chapter VII.

So far the Little Enclosure or Fold was for burials only. In due time there was need of a Meeting-house for Friends' worship, and the next document, likewise before the writer, is an "Abstract of Title to leasehold premises situate near the town of Laugharne, and dated the 10th June, 1742. By an Indenture of Lease between John Stafford, of Bradford, in the county of Wilts., clothier, nephew and devisee of Mary Perrot, of Laugharne, widow of the one part, and Richard Semmers of Haverfordwest, merchant, and John Lewis of the parish of Llanidweli Velfry, in the co. of Pembroke, gentleman of the other part, it is witnessed that John Stafford, in consideration of 5s. paid him by Richard Summers and John Lewis, and for other good and valuable consideration did demise, grant, bargain, set and to farm, let to Richard Summers and John Lewis, their executors and assigns

"forty foot broad of the south-end of all that small piece of land situate on the left side, near the town of Laugharne, late in the possession of Mary Perrot, which forty foot broad is litted and bounded on the north with the other part of the field; on the west with the highway; the river Tawe on the east; and the lands of John Beran of Laugharne on the south; together with all rights to hold Richard Summers and John Lewis for 1,000 years, from thence next ensuing, at the yearly rent payable at the time called Michaelmas, of one pepper-corn, if demanded."

Richard Summers and John Evans covenant "to erect on said lands, a house for the people called Quakers to assemble and meet together for religious worship."

A draft Abstract of Title to these leasehold premises made in the year 1823 is extant. In it we read

"The House so covenanted to be erected was accordingly built. Richard Summers survived John Lewis, having appointed by his will, Jas. Harford his sole executor, who proved (27th day, 4th mo., 1796) the will in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, Doctors' Commons. Jas. Harford by his will proved (2nd day, 6th mo., 1818), also at Drs Commons appointed his sons Samuel Harford of Bristol, and John Harford, of Gelly Wasted, in parish of Mathern, co. Monmouth, who are both living."

Chapter VIII.

References to Laugharne occur so early as the year 1700, in the Minutes of Pembroke-shire Monthly Meeting, when at Q.M. held at Redstone on the 4th of 9th mo. "it was concluded that the next Q.M. be held at Laugharne the next fourth day after the General Meeting at Redstone in the 12th of next month." No record of this proposed Q.M. at Laugharne seems to have been made. It would not appear from the Minutes that the Laugharne meeting was at any time a large one.

Thomas Connock, and James and Michael Samkett are names of resident Friends in 1747.

John Player's "Account of a Journey through Wales" in 1753, already quoted, contains particulars of his and William Brown's visit. "This day, 29th of 11th mo. we set forward for Laugharne [from Jamestown] with our Harford hireling, where we got about the 2nd hour afternoon, and was met there by John Allen of Caermarthen. We got a meeting here in the Meeting-house in the evening, but it being very cold, there was but few people at it (there being but one in unity with Friends in the town, who was ill); however it pleased the great Lord to Order something for them by way of Invitation; they behaved civil.

MADAM BEVAN.

The morrow being advised that there was a woman of some Quality in this town who was much enticed up for her Piety and Chritiaise act to the poor, and for being a Zealous Christian, my companion found freedom in his mind to see her, and spend some time in religious conversation. Accordingly John Allen went to know if it might be agreeable to her, but she being engaged in morning prayer with her family could not speak with her then; but in a little time after we got some breakfast at our inn, and saw the sick Friend, and went and saw her, who received us with a great deal of fashionable freedom. She was full of Brain knowledge, being too wise to learn of Christ, and a thorough Bigot to the priests; tho' at our parting she said she was much obliged for the visit and esteemed it a favour."

Meetings at Laugharne must have been suspended early in the nineteenth century, for at M.M. held at Neath on the 14th of 7th mo., 1803, William Weston Young of Swansea, who had "been desired to call on Rowland Edwards respecting the Burial-ground at Laugharne informs that he acknowledges Friends' claims, and promises the payment of rent as desired." In 1812, Wm. Jones being present at M.M. held at Swansea, the 12th of 4th mo., "reports that he has received of Jane Morgan 1s. for two years' rent for the house lately used as a Meeting House at Laugharne, and 1s. for two years' rent of Rowland Edwards for the use of the ground formerly used as a Burial Ground near the Tucking Mill fields at Laugharne aforesaid, both due the 29th of 9th mo., 1810." In the following year at Neath, on the 21st of 1st mo., Wm. Jones again reports receipt of two similar accounts from the same tenants "which is applied to the use of Caermarthen Meeting."

CARMARTHENSHIRE PLACE-NAMES.

The Congress of Archaeological Societies, with which our County Antiquarian Society is affiliated, has published notes on the systematic study of English Place-names, showing the value of such words for early history, and proving the practical impossibility of accomplishing any scientific work in any department of historical research until the place names of the country have been classified and traced to their origin. The Guild of Graduates belonging to the University of Wales has also appointed a Committee to organise a similar study of Welsh Place-names, but hitherto no principles and regulations have been published as convenient basis or guide in the research work.

Both the English and the Welsh Committees, however, recommend the work to be undertaken county by county, and that meanwhile, till the study is better organised, and the fundamental principles are applied locally, the students of Place-names should avail themselves of whatever guidance they can get in the Reports of Place-name research carried on by the Government in France, or in the British Museum Index to Place-names contained in its rolls and charters, and any other literature on the subject.

We propose, by the help of the members of our Antiquarian Society and the readers of the "Welshman" to outline some such study of the Place-names of Carmarthenshire. We should like, by way of introduction and guidance, that those readers, who will help in this interesting research work, would notice carefully the following principles:—

(1) The Objects of this Systematic Study of Carmarthenshire Place-names are: (a) to discourage the popular but generally worthless fanciful etymologies and substitute a more scientific process by recording actual facts as to Names. As an instance of this home-spun etymology I may cite an explanation which an old inhabitant of Carmarthen gave me some time ago on Wydigada, one of the most peculiar District names in the county. "It must be," said he, "that a chieftain was in days of yore rewarded for some prowess or other by his compatriots, and that the reward was a goose; hence 'Gwyddi gadarn.' So similar in sound, thought he, were the phrases that the one must be the explanation of the other."

Chapter IX.

In 1814 Thomas Biggs reports to M.M. held at Neath the 17th of 3rd mo., "That owing to the decease of Jane Morgan, Friends' Meeting-house and Burial-ground, at Laugharne, has fallen into the part of this Meeting to re-let. Evan Rees and Robert Eaton are desired to take the necessary care in this respect." At the next M.M., held at Swansea, "Robert Eaton reports that an offer has been made by William Parll, of Castle Cary, Somersetshire, for the cottage formerly a Meeting House at Laugharne for the term of 7 years at a sum to leave the Society in receipt of £10 per annum clear of all rates and taxes or repairs; and to leave it in good repair at the end of the said term. His letter on the subject was brought into this meeting," and Evan Rees, Robert Eaton and Jos. T. Price were desired to have "a short agreement signed by both parties." Eaton took the matter in hand, wrote to William Parll on the subject, and received a reply "dated at Castle Cary the 17th of Nov., 1814, stating that he did not wish to incur the expense of a stamp for an agreement." The M.M. therefore concluded to let it rest as per former arrangement for 7 years from the decease of the late Jane Morgan. Robert Eaton reported that he applied for the rent due up to the time of the late Jane Morgan's decease, 3d." At the M.M., held at Neath, 18th of 1st mo., 1815, "the care of receiving the little arrears of rent, 3d., due on the Laugharne Meetinghouse up to the time of the late Jane Morgan's decease, is referred to Robert Eaton." William Parll, evidently in the consent of M.M., "re-let the house at Laugharne to John Vaughan. A copy of his agreement follows: "I, John Vaughan, agree to take the House and garden with premises thereon, at a net annual rent of £8, and to keep the same in repairs, the Society allowing two guineas towards repairs now thought necessary; the rent to be paid half-yearly, and to commence at Christmas next 25th December, 1815." In 1816, after paying £15 monies, which is placed to the credit of this Meeting with Gibbins and Co." Wm. Parll's tenancy ceased, and we hear no more of him or of Vaughan. At the M.M. held that year at Neath, on the 21st of 11th mo., "William Jones reports that application has been made for Laugharne Meeting-house by George Wilkins, who appears willing to take the same at the yearly rent of £5. He is requested to procure a letter from Wilkins addressed to Robert Eaton signifying the same, which letter must be signed also by the person who will be responsible for the rent." Two months later at M.M. held at Swansea, "Peter Price, Elijah Waring, Henry Bath, and several others present, Robert Eaton brought to the Meeting an agreement from George Wilkins to take the Meeting-house at Laugharne at the rent of £5 5s. per annum, to commence 12th mo. 25, 1816, the payment guaranteed by Martha Griffiths." Wilkins was presumably still tenant in 1822, for at M.M. held at Swansea the 9th of 5th mo., "the Treasurer reports that he has received £4 5s. 6d. for rent of Laugharne Meeting-house, which with the allowance of 19s. 6d. to the tenant for repairs makes the amount of rent to 12th mo. 25th last." In 1824 the Meeting-house was "sold to Storck of Laugharne for £80," and at M.M. held at Neath on the 9th of 12th mo. that year, "Robert Eaton is appointed to hand the deeds and receive the money, the sum of £80 purchase money for Laugharne Meeting-house. And he is requested to place the same at interest for the benefit of this Meeting."

The Meeting House, and the Burial Ground were separate properties, the former being the property of the Friends, and the latter, in 1823, being leasehold, was owned by the executors of James Hasford.

On the 9th of 6th mo., 1905, the writer (in company with the Rev. John Thomas, M.A., Vicar of Laugharne) again visited "Quakers' Yard," after a lapse of some fifteen years from the time when he first saw it. No remains whatever of the Meeting-house were visible. The enclosure is yet approached from the high road by the "footway containing four foot in breadth." No headstones nor footstones to any graves are to be seen.

Mary Curtis, in her "Antiquities of Laugharne," simply says (p. 102) "There were Quakers formerly residing in Laugharne. Their burying place was the part still called 'The Quakers' Yard,' a field near Ant's Hill, on the opposite side of the road to it"; and again (p. 100) "Several families of the Quakers resided here formerly. In a field belonging to Horse Pool Farm they had their burying-ground; it is entered by a gate on this side of the upper gate of Ant's Hill House, and opposite to it. From the gate you pass down a narrow path with trees on each side; at the end of it, and on the right is an opening into a square plot of ground closed in on all sides, but one, with a hedge and trees; it is the 'Quakers' Yard.' It dates from about 1600. Some poplar trees then stood here."

The writer, who had personal knowledge of dear Mary Curtis—whose gossip "Antiquities" preserves so much of real value—feels certain that here with her date "from about 1600," she is but simply and in all good faith, recording what she had heard from some of "her many kind friends in these parts." The Burial-ground was leased, in 1726, to "the people called Quakers," the site on which to erect a house "for the people called Quakers, to assemble and meet together for religious worship" was leased in 1742. The earliest MS. reference yet forthcoming to Laugharne Friends is that in the M.M. Minutes of the year 1700.

"This we discovered upon the place."

The last note seems to indicate that the Commissioners did not always visit the places they were appointed to survey.

Endorsed:—"Three tenements in Water-street within the Town of Carmarthen—Carmarthen—Recd. this 6th of September, 1653. Transmitted to the Surveyor General the same day. Ent'd Discoverie, D. Mgn." [i.e., David Morgan.]

Survey No. 17 is as follows:—

"Carmarthen—A survey of two parcels of land, commonly called Park y Brimblawd and Park y Plottas, in the Parish of Carmarthen and in the County of Carmarthen, late parcel of the possessions of Charles Stuart, late King of England, nucle and taken by us whose names are hereunto subscribed, by virtue of a Commission granted to us by the Honourable the Trustees appointed by Act of the Commons assembled in Parliament, for sale of the Honours, Manors, and Lands heretofore belonging to the late King, Queen, and Prince, under their hands and seals.

"Park y Brimblawd—All that close and parcel of arable and meadow ground with the appurtenances, commonly called Parke y Brimblawd, lying and being in the Parish of Carmarthen, within the franchises thereof, and in the County of Carmarthen, and near a place called Llyone y Mandie, abutted on the east by certain grounds called Town Lands, belonging to the Town of Carmarthen, and on the north by the lands of Mr. John Williams aforesaid, which said close contained by estimation five acres, more or less, which we value to be worth per annum .05.0.0.—1s.

"Park y Plottas—All that piece and parcel of arable ground with the appurtenances, commonly called Parke y Plottas, lying and being in the Parish of Carmarthen, within the franchises thereof, and in the said County of Carmarthen, and in a place called Llyone y Mandie abutted on the east, south, and west by certain closes of ground in the tenure of Mr. John Williams aforesaid, and on the north by a parcel of ground within the same inclosure, called the Town-Commons, belonging to the Town of Carmarthen, which said parcel of ground called Park y Plottas, contained by estimation one acre and a half, more or less, which we value to be worth per annum 01.2.00.—xv s.

"Which said parcels of ground called Parke y Brimblawd and Park y Plottas, we find in the tenure and occupation of Mr. John Williams aforesaid, who claims to hold the same by virtue of letters patent under the Great Seal, dated the 10th of January, the 14th of King James, whereby King James granted unto Thomas Trever, Esq., to the use of Prince Charles, all that close, called Parke y Brimblawd, containing three (sic) acres, and one close, called Parke y Plottas, containing one acre and a half, lying in the Town of Carmarthen, clerk, and franchises thereof paying therefore the yearly rent of fifteen shillings, late parcel of the possession of Rice Griffith, attainted, Habendum, for ninety nine years, from Michaelmas then last past, which said Thomas Trever, Knight (sic), by Indenture dated the 27th of September, 1631, assigns his interest in the parcels aforesaid unto John Eadisbury and his assigns, whence the same is derived to the present possessor, Mr. John Williams, who hath sixty three years yet to come and unexpired, by virtue of the said letters patent.

"And all ways, passages, liberties, privileges, jurisdictions, franchises, immunities, profits, commodities, advantages, and appurtenances whatsoever, to the said parks belonging or in any wise appertaining, or which have been heretofore used, occupied, or enjoyed, as part parcel and member of them or any of them.

"Total value per annum .lxxv s.

"This survey was perfected the 6th of September, 1653, by us, viz.,

VICARS OF ST. PETER'S, CARMARTHEN.

Richard II.—Robert Prythin.
1534—Thomas Richard.
1540—Thomas Lloyd.
1671—Owen Thomas.

Two lists of Vicars have already appeared in these Transactions, VII., 23; X., 42.

In a MS. book compiled by Mr. David Jones, and now in the possession of Lloyd Nicholl, F.S.A. I find the four names given above. In all other respects the list agrees with those hitherto published, but the death of Vicar Philip Jones is given under 1695, and not 1696 (Mr. Alwyn Evans). The date 1534 for the institution of Thomas Richard creates a difficulty even if he is not identical with the Thomas Fritchard of 1533. Is there anything known of Owen Thomas? Was he Curate or Vicar?

CHAPTER X.

SOME LAUGHARNE FRIENDS.

RICHARD STAFFORD and MARY PERROT.

—They were, in all likelihood, son and daughter of Walter Stafford (1667-1746), a "convicted" Friend, who died at Cork, whose grandfather, Edmund Stafford descended from the early Harons and Earls of Stafford, fled from his home at Laugharne, after the defeat of the Royalists by Cromwell's troops, and settled in Ireland. Edmund's son, Richard (d. 1692) returned to England in the reign of Charles II. and vainly endeavoured to recover his father's Welsh subjectance. He is described as a "High Churchman." His son Walter, the probable father of Richard and Mary, had also a son John Stafford born at Cork in 1705, removed to Bristol, and thence to London, where he died in 1781, leaving a widow, Ann Masters (d. 1768), of Cork, a Friend. Margaret Stafford (1747-1830), their daughter, married Job Allen (1734-1800), silk weaver, Spitalfields, a "convicted" Friend, and was the mother of William Allen, F.R.S. (1770-1843), a well-known philanthropist, and Executor to H.R.H. the Duke of Kent.

JOHN STAFFORD, nephew and devisee of Mary Perrot, and, in 1742, described as "of Bradford," in the county of Wilts., clothier, may have been son of Samuel Stafford, another son of Walter Stafford. If so, he was killed at the battle of Bunker's Hill, 17 June, 1775.

JAMES PERROT, husband of Mary Stafford, remains, so far, unidentified. Laugharne members and other readers may be able to help in the matter.

CHAPTER XI.

LLANDILO-FAWR.

The earliest mention known to the writer of any Quaker in this parish is that by Bessie in the "Sufferings," where he writes (l., p. 742)—

"Anno 1660. John Williams of Llandilo, for a Demand for 14s. for Tithes, had an Horse taken from him worth £1."

That such treatment as this did not exterminate the Friends from the parish is evident from an entry in the MS. Register of the M.M. of the South Division of Wales, 1657-1766, in the custody of the Registrar-General, and which has come under the writer's examination:—

"Rachel Bowen departed this life the 11th Day of the 7th mo., in the year of our blessed Saviour, 1694. And was stolen from Friends, And lies inter'd in Llandilo Steeple House."

This violent appropriation of a Friend's corpse by relatives and others who were not of the Society was not singular to Llandilo. At Alton, in Hampshire, a similar occurrence had taken place some years previously. In the MS. Register of the Friends in that district we find this entry:—

"Sarah Bullask, dau. of Thos. and Ann Bullask, having departed the body And being intended to be buried in the burying place at Alton; William Bullock, brother of Thos. Bullock, and John Silchester, brother of Ann Bullock, did by violence take and carry the Corps, and buried it in the mass-house yard, to ye griefe of her parents."

In his MS. "Visitatio Archidiaconatus Maridunensis, A.D., MDCCX," Archdeacon Tension records that in

"Llan Deilo fawr, There is a meeting of Quakers consisting of about 6 families of this parish."

At this period Friends assembled for worship in a house known as Penplace, and here they were visited on Monday, 3rd day 12th mo., 1753, by John Player, who came to them from the meeting at Caermarthen already referred to, and who is careful to note in his MS. that the distance from Caermarthen to Penplace is twelve miles. He says:—

"The morrow a meeting was appointed to be at Pen-place at the wido. Bowens whither we went being accompany'd by our Landlord Wm. Reynolds as Guide. Having sat under a pretty heavy Cloud for some time in the meeting it was made manifest that a meeting by way of Conference was what wou'd be of most service here, accordingly it was proposed, and the state of their meeting enquired into concerning their holding a week day meeting, in which practice they had formerly been, but thro' lukewarmness and an indifferent state had let it drop, by which a numbness was come upon them. After having blamed one and t'other for their non-attendance they agree'd to renew the former practice, and after a little silent waiting the meeting ended with an admonition concerning the nature of true and acceptable prayer. We lodg'd here this night, Wm. Reynolds returning home."

Another meeting was likewise occasionally held at this time at Pen-y-banno, some seven miles from Penplace, and thither John Player rode on the following day:—

"The morrow set forward to Penbank to the house of Thomas Price (accompanied by David Bowen as guide), where we had a meeting in the evening. It was a tolerable good meeting, tho' some was not so watchful as could have been desired. They were advised to be more mindful of the duty they came about, and encouraged to revive their week-day meeting."

CHAPTER XII.

The invaluable Minute Books at Neath now help us to carry on our tale. The first reference is that of a M.M. held at Penybank, 5th of 2nd mo., 1757, the Friends present being William Reynolds, Lewis William, Thomas John, Jacob David, Thomas Rowell, Thomas John Phillip, William Griffith, Rees William, Evan William, and Thomas Price. The number of Friends entered as being here—ten—is larger than usual at that period, and evidently some especial business had to be considered. This was none other than to confer about a new place of meeting. We read that—

"As Friends are not satisfied to keep their Meeting at Penplace any further, this Meeting appoints Jacob David, Lewis William, to look for a convenient place for a Meeting-house and agree for the same."

CAERMARTHEN.

THE LAST MAN PUT IN THE PILLORY.

"In a letter which has appeared [1892] in the 'South Wales Star,' we read:—The Unitarians were in a strange position during the great French wars at the end of the last century. They were detested by the Government on account of their freedom of thought, and their avowed sympathy with the French Revolution; while they were equally abhorred by the old Conservative Revivalists for their heterodoxy on such questions as the inspiration of the Bible and the Trinity. The last man in Wales to be put in a pillory was a Unitarian preacher at Caermarthen, who was suspected of Jacobinism." The following particulars relating to the Unitarian preacher here spoken of have been kindly supplied to us by Mr. Alwyn G. Evans, of Caermarthen, the well-known antiquary:—"Thomas Evans, or Thomas Glyn Cothi, was born in May, 1766, at a place called Capel St. Silin, near Breckfa, close to the river Cothi. He married when young, and when he had six children he went to Swansea Grammar School, at the expense of the Unitarian body. Became a preacher in 1794. In 1797, when the French Revolution disturbed all Europe Tom Evans turned into a kind of 'Cwm bach' at Breckfa, where not ale but mead was called and paid for, to assist the household, as was common in those days. A secret enemy induced him to sing the Marseillaise Hymn, as it was translated into Welsh by Iolo Morganwg. He commenced—
"Chwi feibion rhydd did."

I have the whole of the words. [Where are they now?—G.E.E.] For this he suffered two years' imprisonment in Caermarthen Gaol, and was pilloried. His daughter, who died in Priory Street not long ago, stood by his side. Of all the crowd, a woman was the only one to throw a missile at the head of this defender of free speech. When in gaol he wrote an English and Welsh dictionary, published in 1807. In Caermarthenshire he lived at a place called Penpistyll, and was called 'Twm Penpistyll' or 'Apostol Penpistyll.' He went to Aberdare about the year 1813, and died there as minister of the old chapel in Mill Street. Oki Iolo Morganwg lent Twm some MS. hymns, and when Twm published his own (which are now beside me) consisting of 100 (A.D. 1811), two lines appeared as if borrowed from Iolo's, and a coolness between the two men existed ever afterwards. Evans died 29th January, 1833, aged 68. His grand-daughter died in Priory Street about eighteen years ago. [We believe that Mr George Bagwall is one of the survivors who witnessed Evans in the Pillory in front of Caermarthen Gaol.—Ed.]—From the "Welshman."

Reprinted from "The Caermarthenshire Miscellany," 1892, p. 56. Thomas Evans has since fully sorted and endorsed by the late Fred. J. Gibbins. Amongst them is one written on the 28th August, 1828, to J. T. Price, Nenth Abbey, Glamorganshire, by "M. W. Johns, glass and china warehouse, Cross, Caermarthen:—

"I have at last succeeded in obtaining a responsible tenant for your Chapel. Llanmaes Street, Caermarthen, on the same conditions, rent, etc., as I had it from you. He is perfectly satisfied of its being in good tenant-repair both in and outside and will engage to keep it so while in his possession. He only engages to take it from year to year, in case of his dissolution. He is now a schoolmaster, having a large school and respectable. He will take possession on Michaelmas next if you are satisfied; he is well known and of very respectable connections. Both he, his wife, and family have taken a dwelling-house in the town already. His name is John Griffiths, from Aber-gwily in this county."

Jos. T. Price and Berington Gibbins, to whose hands, as we have seen, the matter of finding another tenant was referred by M.M., at once agreed "to accept John Griffiths as tenant of the house to be appropriated for a respectable school." It was in this year, 1828, that J. P. Brodribb, of the "Golden Academy," Pembroke, opened his school, as an advertisement shews, in Llanmaes Street, Caermarthen. In 1830 he seems to have been in possession of the Meeting-house, and to have quarrelled with M. W. Johns. A bill is in the bundle, shewing that Evan Evans, Attorney, Caermarthen, then lately deceased, had been employed by Johns "in recovering debt from Mr. Brodribb, 18s.," said debt, by endorsement amounting to £5 12s. 6d. This bill being amongst the Nenth papers, seems to point to Brodribb having been a sub-tenant to Johns, the letting of the premises to John Griffiths having fallen through.

LAUGHARNE.

A letter written from Laugharne, on the 17th July, 1827, by Wm. Perrott, and addressed to "Mr. Starbuck, Milford, Pembrokeshire," is amongst these at Nenth. It gives us a view of the state of the Burial Ground at that time:—

"In confidence that you will kindly excuse this liberty I have taken to acquaint you of a circumstance respecting the Burial ground which belongs to your Society. Many years past the ground was made over to the Society by James Perrott, then of this town, also the ground where the Meeting-house now is; the said James Perrott, also some others, are interred in the burial-ground. The occupier of the meadow wherein it is, has plowed it up, and planted potatoes therein, and report says that it's intended to cut the timber there also. As James Perrott was brother to my grandfather, it would be of great satisfaction to me to see it decently kept for the use it was intended. When I occupied the 'Blue Bear Inn' at St. Clears, I mentioned the circumstance to Mr. Rock, of Milford, and some time after he informed me that he had made enquiries, and that my relative was a very worthy member of their Society, and if anyone laid their finger on it to 'inger 'it, if I would let him know he would take it up most seriously."

This letter, with its great monogram seal in red wax, was sent on to Berington Gibbins, who at once took notice, and wrote to Wm. Perrott:—

"As some of thy ancestors were interred in the Burial Ground belonging to our Society at Laugharne, I am commissioned to write on its behalf to request that thou wilt be kind enough to have an oversight respecting the said Burial Ground, that it may be kept in good order, and the trees properly preserved."

He also asks Perrott to collect the small rent due for it from Rowland Edwardes, as well as to apply to George Wilkins for balance due from him for rent of "the late Meeting-house and garden up to the time of our selling those premises."

KIWOLLY.

This note is amongst some papers in my custody, will anyone with local knowledge expand or explain it?

"East Garston, in the hundred of Lambourne, about ten miles from Newbury, was held the Manor, by the service of finding a Knight, clad in plate armour, to serve for forty days in the King's army at his own cost, whenever the King should be in the territory of Kidwelly in Wales, of which Manor this was a member."

CAERMARTHEN: THE POND SIDE.

It is said this mill stream was diverted from the Gwili, and made 300 years ago; the probability is it was made to supply water to a mill which formerly stood near Pont Richard Eynon, and afterwards was extended to a mill, and to the Tinworks near the Priory; as also to a mill near Abergwili bridge. The farm-house at that place is still called Felin-nauydd in contradistinction to the Bishop's Mill, on either one on the opposite side of the Gwili, watered from the Crychiau, a tributary.

Cf. MS. Note by the late George Spurrell.

GEO. EYRE EVANS.

CAERMARTHEN BRIDGE.

This was formerly repairable by the Corporation of Kidwelly, which owned marshes near Pensarn road, which road that Corporation also repaired, but the marshes (held to be in the Duchy of Lancaster) were transferred to the Corporation on condition to maintain Caermarthen Bridge and Pensarn Road. The Sarn, or Pensarn Road was transferred to the County Roads' Board in July, 1845. Stone walls were built near the Bridge, and the roadway levelled in 1766; the arch next the town rebuilt in 1775; and the bridge widened six feet in 1777. In 1828-9 it was again widened, and the recesses on the pillars removed, and a dwarf wall and railings erected, subsequently replaced by those now on it.

ABERGWILI: THE BISHOP'S POND.

This favourite resort of skaters in hard winters is part of the old course of the Towy, which took place at a great flood, on the night of Llany-brother Fair, 17th July, 1802, when Lord George Murray was Bishop of St. David's. Previously coals used to be conveyed to Abergwili Palace by boats, there being a short canal from the Towy, crossed by a bridge called "Pont y Rocen." This diversion of Towy must not be confounded with one which took place before, and is shewn on Speed's Map, 1610, by two courses of the river.
